ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This method is intended for a vehicle equipped with a handsfree access system comprising a badge and elements communication by electromagnetic signals between the vehicle and the badge making it possible to locate the badge with respect to the vehicle. The hands-free access system makes it possible to operate a locking of the doors when the last door of the vehicle is closed and when the badge exits a first zone delimited around the vehicle. A second zone, more extensive than the first zone, is delimited around the vehicle. A relocking is commanded when, after a locking of the doors commanded by the hands-free system, a door is opened without action of the hands-free system and then closed again, uniquely insofar as a badge is located within the second zone.
